Quotes to Consider

Pray for One Another: "There is a tendency in us to think only of our own souls--our own spiritual conflict--our own progress in religion, and to forget others. Against this tendency we have need to watch and strive, not the least in our prayers. We should study to be of a public spirit. We should stir ourselves up to name other names beside our own before the throne of grace. We should try to bear in our hearts... the country in which we live, the congregation to which we belong, the family and home in which we live, the friends and relations we are connected with. For each and all of these we should plead. This is the highest love. He loves me best who loves me in his prayers." -J. Ryle

Avoiding Temptation: "Holiness begins in our minds and works out to our actions. That being true, what we allow to enter our minds is critically important. The television programs we watch...the books and magazines we read, the music we listen to, and the conversations we have all affect our minds. We need to evaluate the effects of these avenues honestly, using Philippians 4:8 as a standard. Are the thoughts stimulated by these various avenues true? Are they pure? Lovely? Admirable, excellent, or praise-worthy?" -J. Bridges

Money's Power? "A hammer of gold will not open the gate of heaven. Money opens many of the gates of earth, for bribery is rife; but it has no power in the world to come. Money is more eloquent than ten members of parliament, but it cannot prevail with the Great Judge." -C. Spurgeon

Antinomianism: "Again it would be easy to show that the doctrine of sanctification without personal exertion, by simply 'yielding ourselves to God,' is precisely the doctrine of the antinomian...and that the tendency of it is evil in the extreme." -J. Ryle

Reformed Witness Hour: KARI 550AM Sunday @ 8:00 p.m.
